RICH WITH REVITALIZING HOSPITALITY

Branded as a “Community of communities,” the Flagstaff Region prides itself on the 10 communities within it, each offering its own unique set of attractions.

All told, the Region is home to six heritage-based museums rooted in the agricultural and mining sector, four golf courses, numerous campgrounds and RV parks, including Fish Lake and the Diplomat Trout Pond for family fishing, unique and historic passenger train excursions, and several other outdoor amenities. Increased investment and ongoing growth associated with the oil and gas industry, especially in the Hardisty Energy Hub, has been a driver for hospitality and accommodation services.

The area also provides a superb quality of life in rural and small town settings, with competitive wages for skilled labour, plentiful access to health care services and lower housing costs compared to larger urban centres.

Growth Areas

Potential outdoor and agritourism opportunities, along with existing heritage tourism opportunities, have been identified as having significant competitive advantages for the Flagstaff region. There are opportunities for development of signature experiential tourism and agritourism ventures that celebrate local heritage, rural living, the importance of the railway in rural communities, and the primary industry sectors that built the Flagstaff region.
